enterprise software
consulting

Fact sheet:

Grappia was founded to offer businesses enterprise level consulting, primarily focused for mobile devices on all platforms.

Based in London's digital hub in the Clerkenwell area, Grappia offers technical support and advice in all aspects of digital software development, including linking robust CMS solutions to mobile strategies; putting the power of digital communications in customer's hands.

Our "best of breed" partnership approach to software development ensures you benefit in the following ways:

- Scale. Our teams of developers, architects, designers and implementers can expand or reduce in size depending on your needs, ensuring continuity and quality control.
- Team focus. As our development happens in a near shore environment, we encounter much less staff attrition and change, ensuring your build is completed by the same team which is assigned to the project from start to finish.
- Consultative. Grappia has researched the globe for culturally assimilated partners with excellent engineering, design and implementation skills, who understand local values, business practices and expectations. This also means you can expect the Grappia team to make recommendations and suggest improvements to design, architecture and user experience, adding value and relevance prior to testing.
- Cost. As you'd expect, we aim to be competitive. But we realise that price alone is not your key motivating factor when engaging with a consultant. We hope our deep experience helping large businesses launch & implement CMS, enterprise level applications and software solutions is pivotal to visionary strategists.
- On time. We know the business demands a "fail fast" route to market, requiring timely delivery to test and upgrade products with customer expectations.
- Game changing. We aim to help your project, team and business achieve efficiencies and improve the overall effectiveness of your business performance... this is our goal!
